

New Manager Orientation Program Curriculum Overview

Program Description:

The New Manager Orientation Program (NMOP) is offered to new people managers at McMaster University. The training program incorporates McMaster's identified core leadership competencies along with critical business, financial and human resources procedures. Participants will progress through the eight and a half day program as a group or cohort over a six month period. The curriculum covers a variety of topics that will help reinforce and enhance behaviours and skill building around the leadership competencies while appropriately integrating key University knowledge so that new managers better understand McMaster's culture and practices. Visit the program website for eligibility criteria: www.workingatmcmaster.ca/nmop.

McMaster University Leadership Competencies:

- Employing University Acumen (EUA)
- Communicating (C)
- Developing People (DP)
- Embracing Change (EC)
- Optimizing Service Relationships (OSR)
- Leading (L)

Program Learning Objectives:

- Effectively communicate with internal and external individuals and groups to further the work of the University.
- Develop capacity of McMaster employees to build rewarding and challenging jobs and careers that further the work of the University.
- Create deepened knowledge of University functions and access to information to facilitate cross departmental interactions and build awareness of support mechanisms.
- Identify and build relationships with key stakeholders to effectively embrace change.
